Freeway planting may obligate city forever

I am sure that I will be called all sorts of names – anti-pretty, against nature and blackballed by the Sierra Club. That is my destiny after people read this article. I certainly am not anti-nature, or planting, or open space, or beautifying the community. I supported the center divide landscaping, and the plantings in all sorts of places in our city. We put in the water systems, and agreed on the ongoing maintenance costs. So there!

However, the "plant Lemon Grove" has roused misgivings and distrust of the benefactors who donated all of the plants and shrubbery for the freeway offramps and highway property that adjoins Lemon Grove as state Route 94.

The volunteerism was great and so typical of our people and their willingness to participate in community projects. It was completely natural that the 200-plus of our citizens pitched in to plant Lemon Grove. As with Paint Lemon Grove, it had the best of intentions, and it will make the freeway more beautiful in the coming years. I must heartily congratulate all who participated with a "well done."

But, here comes the paranoia, the doubts, and the worry about the final outcome of this well-intentioned and completed effort. The facts are that we, the city of Lemon Grove, will be forever obligated to maintain and keep up the state of California property with water and all else that goes with keeping landscaping healthy and beautiful.

If that occurs, and down the road I am proved to be a worry-wart with no basis for my fears, then I will kiss the feet of anyone who will ask. And I will be one happy person to be proved wrong.

My experience with Caltrans has been a testy one. I am still aware of how they are treating some of our people on Crane Street, and other areas with the state Route 125 taking of land for right of way. Past history has shown to me that they are a ponderous, autocratic and sometimes heartless super-agency who deals constantly with the public. Family homes and businesses are confiscated, if you will, for the "public good" and not without a varying amount of hardship to displaced parties. Just our short stretch of SR125 adjacent to Lemon Grove has been severely impacted.

My question is, how many other of such sweetheart deals for continuing maintainence have been made in San Diego, Oceanside, Chula Vista, etc., all larger communities than ours? As a member of the Metropolitan Transit District Board, we were often requested to support freeway landscaping in the "poorer sections" of the highway passage. They 'seemed to be left out of the beautification while the more affluent segments were beautified with plantings. I guess I am just skeptical, despite our council's assurance, that only three years will see the planting surviving on its own. Will they weed and prune themselves or whatever seems to be constantly needed in my yard?

I love the way it looks, and pray that all of our expectations come to fruition. But, sending a latent bill to Caltrans will surely be dropped into the circular file. A deal is a deal, and don't forget it ...

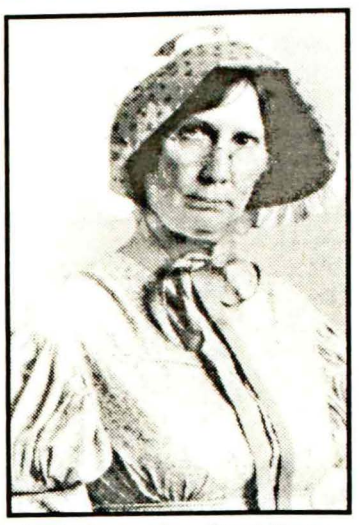
History author brings to life woman of Gold Rush frontier

She was one of the few women on the California Trail in 1849 and left behind fascinating recollections of that arduous journey overland to the California gold fields.



Doris Dwyer plays Sarah Royce

She settled for a while in Grass Valley, then followed her wandering husband as he sought fame and fortune. All the while she held to her Puritan faith and tried to remedy the "lawlessness and debauchery" of Gold Rush-era California by establishing schools and churches.

In later life, she revelled in the success of her philosopher son, the eminent Josiah Royce of Harvard. She died in a bizarre accident in San Jose in 1891.

Now Sarah Royce, author of Frontier Lady, returns to life in Lemon Grove for three riveting "History Alive! Chautauqua" theatrical performances, 11 a.m. May 15 at Lemon Grove Middle School, 7866 Lincoln; 7 p.m. that day in the Community Center, 3146 School Ln.; and 2 p.m. May 16 at the Lemon Grove Library, 8073 Broadway. Admission is free.

The extraordinary life of Sarah Royce will be portrayed by Doris Dwyer, a scholar and nationally-renowned chautauqua performer, who has also portrayed environmentalist Rachel Carson and Margaret Breen of the Donner Party. Dwyer teaches American, Constitutional, European and Nevada history at Western Nevada Community College in Fallon, Nev.

"History Alive! Chautauqua" performances are dramatic, historically accurate portrayals of personalities from California's Gold Rush era, acted by scholars with in-depth knowledge of the characters they portray. Following an unscripted monologue about his or her life, the historical character takes questions directly from the audience.

Bright lights, Small town

Even the stars love East County

Story and photos by Mark Morgan-Kallbuen

Lots of people live in East County because of affordable property and open space, and the stars of local TV and radio are no exception. Some, most notably disk jockey "Shotgun Tom" Kelly and news anchor Vic Salazar, grew up in East County and are happy to still be here.

Others commute to stations closer to the coast, avoiding both the higher cost of living and crowds.

Shotgun Tom Kelly grew up in Lemon Grove and got his start in radio during high school at the old KPRI. He spent several decades moving up and down the dial, at KUSI TV, the old KCBQ, a pair of stints at the old B-100, oldies K-Best 95 and, most recently, doing voice-overs for Jacor Broadcasting and KNSD TV.

Kelly can be heard in San Diego doing afternoon drive on the CBS-owned K-Earth 101 in Los Angeles. He has an apartment there with a view of CBS' Television City and the Hollywood sign. But after his last show on Friday afternoon, Kelly heads south 120 miles to his longtime home in Fletcher Hills.

Carol LeBeau and Len Ping both consider the commute to KGTV, just off Highway 94, a breeze.

That's a long commute. Why does he do it?

"Oh babe, that's easy," Kelly quips. "It just feels good. Fletcher Hills is away from the hustle and bustle. My family [he is married with two teenage children] are there. El Cajon has been home for 22 years. I love my apartment and I'm comfortable there during the week, but Fletcher Hills is home."

Vic Salazar can be found more often than not at his home in El Cajon. Another Mount Miguel High School graduate (Class of 1978), KNSD-TV weekend news anchor prefers the East County because he grew up here.

"It's home," he said. "My mother still lives in La Mesa. I like the open spaces. I like the heat in the summer and the crisp winter mornings. I like the variances in the weather, I like the fact that it's open and houses aren't stacked on top of each other."

San Diego is a homecoming for Salazar. He spent several years in Bakersfield, working at the NBC affiliate there. Though he loves San Diego, Salazar still returns to Kern County each year to visit his mother-in-law, but feels blessed to work in his home town.

"That's very rare in this business," he said. "I was able to come home, and San Diego County is a great place to live and work."

He said he especially likes running into people that he grew up with. Salazar is the father of two, a boy and a girl. Despite having a high-profile job, he considers himself like any other father, spending a lot of his spare time at the park.

"I'm a real homebody," Salazar said. "The news business requires some very long hours, so I really treasure my time off. I love to spend time with my kids."

When he's not at the park or doing Saturday yard work, you might catch him once or twice a month at Singing Hills.

He laughs even harder when asked about his golfing ability. Does he have a handicap?

"Yeah, my four-iron."

Affordable property value is mentioned by most broadcasters not fortunate enough to be reared in East County. After owning homes in Hawaii and Pacific Beach, KFMB's Mike Cook had the opportunity to purchase a friend's home in the East County. He has been here ever since.

"I was used to the beach," said Cook, host of "Hooked on Trivia." "But it was real large, an acre, a pool, and (using a game show term) the price was right. I like the East County because of the property. You can buy more for your money."

Cook, who calls his program the "World's Longest Quiz Show," has resided in Granite Hills since 1980. He has been around San Diego radio stations for years, having worked at Magic 91 (which is now KECR AM in El Cajon), KCEO AM in Carlsbad, KSDO AM in San Diego and XTRA Sports 690.

You won't find Cook out and about town much. A family man and father of four, Cook said he likes to spend his little bit of spare time with his family. His 17-year-old son, Troy, is a senior at Granite Hills High School and has grown up helping out on Cook's various shows through the years.

Longtime Channel 10 News anchor Carol LeBeau grew up in Iowa, so it's not surprising that she enjoys the rural area of Blossom Valley. She admits that the East County wasn't her first choice, but when she saw the property values, she realized that she could get a lot more bang for her buck.

"Our best reason is you can get a lot more house in the East County than what it would have cost to build a two-bedroom house in La Jolla," LeBeau said. "At times, I wish I didn't have to drive as far to La Jolla Shores, but at the time we purchased our house, we couldn't afford as much home in the North County or at Coronado, which was our second choice."

LeBeau said people tease her about living so far away from the nightlife and the coastal restaurants, but she has come to discover many pluses to East County.

Her enthusiasm rises with talk about room to move and jog. "I have to stop to pet the horses and goats," she said. "I love the peace and quiet. I can see Lake Jennings and El Capitan. It's refreshing and it's a renewal."

LeBeau said there's a lot of stress at the station, a place she usually doesn't leave until midnight. Blossom Valley is quiet and she can sleep late.

"It's only a 24-minute drive to the station," she said. "So I'm not really that far away."

LeBeau's colleague, Channel 10 Sports anchor Len Ping, has also found a home in East County. Ping moved to KGTV from a station in Miami, Fla., and immediately made his home in El Cajon.

Ping, a midwesterner, doesn't hanker for beaches and likes the proximity of his apartment to the TV station, Qualcomm Stadium and Cox Arena at San Diego State University. Cost is also a significant factor.

"It's a short drive," Ping said. "Beaches are nice, but I don't have to live on one. The East County is nice with its rural areas, and the cost of living is affordable."

If you're a regular at Marieta's Mexican Restaurant in El Cajon or play basketball on Open Gym night at Granite Hills High School, you'll run into longtime radio talk-show host Stacy Taylor.

Taylor earns his living in verbal battle, discussing controversial topics on KSDO AM, so it's no surprise that he retreats to the solitude of Alpine and his family after he gets off the air.

"I like it up here because it is insulated from the evils of the city," he said. "That's part of the reason. Alpine doesn't have some of the social distractions that were toxic."

When he's not in Alpine, Taylor shoots hoops at the gymnasium, visits various taco stands or rides his Harley Davidson out on Buckman Springs Road to Boulevard, Campo or even Tecate.

East County is just a good place to get a perspective, he said.

"You can step outside and hear the frogs and morning doves," he said. "There are genuine people, no posturing. You can go watch a game at the little league field."

KOGO's Ninette Sosa also enjoys the open space in Santee, watching the sun set over Mission Trails or Santee Lakes from the top of the hill.

Other broadcasters making East County home include XTRA's Mike McGregor, KFMB sportscaster and former Padre Mark Grant and Bill Babcock, host of KECR's "Praise and Prayer."

Ironically, the more people discover East County's affordability and openness, the less those qualities will exist.

Taylor, whose Alpine is on the edge of the urban encroachment, has mixed emotions.

"Sometimes I'm enraptured, and then I'm afraid my great big lot will get developed," he said. "Project 20 years in advance, and it will be like Poway."

Master Chorale/faculty concerts set

Two performances from the Grossmont College Music Department will celebrate Mother's Day this weekend — the Grossmont Master Chorale and a faculty recital by Betsy Frater and Vicky Claborn.

The Grossmont Master Chorale with Randall Tweed as director will present "Spring Choral Concert - A Rainbow of Love," at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Catholic Church, 13208 Lakeshore Dr. in Lakeside. The suggested donation is $10 (mothers are free).

The concert includes a cappella choral literature featuring a gamut of love songs from the Renaissance to a tribute to George Gershwin.

Tweed has been conducting opera, symphony, and chorus throughout Southern and Baja California since joining the music faculty of Grossmont College in 1986. Tweed has frequently appeared as a guest conductor on concert music series throughout Southern California, including the International Orchestra and Spreckel's Organ Society.

A faculty recital by soprano Betsy Frater and pianist Vicky Claborn will take place at 7:30 p.m. Saturday evening in the Grossmont College Fine Arts Recital Hall. The hall is located on the campus of Grossmont College, 8800 Grossmont College Dr. in El Cajon. Admission is free.

Claborn and Frater blend their talents to bring an evening of music in honor of Mother's Day. Musical selections include compositions by Handel, Bach, Bellini, Rorem, Copland, Floyd, Dvorak, Rachmaninoff, and Hely-Hutcheson.

Frater received her bachelor of arts in education from Heidelberg College in Tiffin, Ohio and her master of arts in vocal performance from San Diego State University. She is a soloist with the San Diego Lutheran Chorale and the California Contemporary Chorale. Currently, she teaches voice classes at Grossmont College, Mesa College and Southwestern College, and teaches elementary music at Christ the Cornerstone Lutheran School. She is organist and choir director for the Tierrasanta Lutheran Church.

Claborn received her bachelor of music in performance and music therapy at the University of Georgia in 1979. She began studying music at the age of 4. Her most influential teachers were Sid Richardson and Vola Jacobs of Augusta, Ga., and Despi Karles of Athens, Ga. Since moving to San Diego in 1994, she has been a professional accompanist and private piano teacher.

For further information, call the Grossmont College Music Department at 644-7255.

Grossmont College's Hyde Gallery is currently showing the Art Department's annual student art exhibit. The exhibit represents a cross-section of art produced by students resulting from their studies within the department. The works on display were selected and submitted by their instructors for this exhibition and these works represent the best examples of art produced by the students in their classes.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Monday and Wednesday, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday. The exhibit runs through May 22. The gallery, located at 8800 Grossmont College Dr. is open to the public and there is no admission charge.

Included in the exhibit are ceramics, drawings, jewelry, photography, sculpture and two and three dimensional design.
